

Mill Road Corridor Study

The Mill Road Corridor and the Drury south business project are complementary and the Drury south business project has the potential to facilitate the establishment of part of the corridor.

Studies are currently under way by Manukau City and Papakura District Councils to investigate a new arterial route connecting Flatbush and Drury.

That project, known as the Mill Road Corridor Study, is identified in the Auckland Regional Transport Authority's (ARTA's) Regional Arterial Road Plan 2009 and the Draft Auckland Transport Plan (illustrated).

The objective of the Mill Road Corridor is to:

- Provide an alternative arterial road to service growth in the south east; and
- To enhance security of access for Auckland by providing an alternative southern connection to SH1 that avoids key 'pinch points' on the State Highway network.

There will be a separate community consultation process on the Mill Road Corridor project in the near future.
